DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1, 2, 4-7, 9-12, 14-16, 18-20, 22-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chang et al. in view of Huang et al.

Chang discloses a heat sink retention frame comprising: a plurality of spaced apart base members 50, 60 mounted on a board member 10 and the processor 20 mounted on the board member; each base member having a first connector portion 52 and a second connection portion 62, and a retention member 40 having a first end 41 movably connected to the first connector portion 52 of one of the base members and having a second end 42 extended into connection with the second connector portion 62 of another of the base members; the connector portions on each base member include a pivotal connection and a latch connection; the first end is pivotally connected and the second end is latched; the retention member 40 spans a space between two adjacent base members 50 and 60. Chang discloses the claimed invention except a plurality of interchangeable retention members. Huang discloses the plurality of the interchangeable retention members. It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to have more than one retention members as disclosed by Huang to securely attaching the heat sink to the board member. Chang discloses the claimed invention except for variably sized retention members. It would have been an obvious matter of design choice to have retention members sized as to be correspondent to space between the base members, since such a modification would have involved a mere change in the size of a component. A change in size is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art. In re Rose, 105 USPQ 237 (CCPA 1955).

The method steps of claim 24 are necessitated by the device structure as disclosed by Chang et al. in view of Huang et al.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 3, 8, 13, 17, 21 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
